

PHILP OPTIMISTIC ABOUT HIS FUTURE

Retired RCAF pilot Owen Philp has been associated with North Saanich all his life. Since his retirement in 1973 after 32 years in the forces he's been farming 20 acres at 10202 McDonald Park Road where he runs Hereford beef cattle and Sussex sheep on the land he bought in 1951.

After an unsuccessful bid for the mayor's seat in 1973 when he was topped by both Paul Grieve and Doug Boon, Philp won an aldermanic seat a year ago.

Philp believes his long association with the North Saanich district and his background in dealing with governments as a public servant are his key qualifications for the municipality's top job.

While he has opinions on virtually every issue in the area, he refuses to make campaign promises he can't keep.

For example, says Philp, if elected mayor he'd investigate the possibility of getting provincial and federal funding to establish the controversial Bosun's Marina property as a greenbelt area. That doesn't mean he's guaranteeing the marina site will be protected if he's elected mayor.

Some 1,400 people have signed a petition opposing development of the site, he says, and the petition should be regarded as a clear illustration of the feelings of the North Saanich voters. It's doubtful, he adds, that as many people could be persuaded to sign a petition favouring the proposed development.

DEVELOPMENT PEAKED

Marina development in general has reached its peak on the peninsula, says Philp, and there's little need for more marina facilities. Some marinas, however, could use a facelift and Philp would encourage their owners to do some tidying work.

The purpose of establishing the Bosun's site as a greenbelt area would be specifically to preserve the land. There's no need, Philp says, to designate more parkland in North Saanich.

A great deal of parkland in the municipality is not being used because it's not adequately developed, he says. Trails and picnic tables should be provided for many of the parks.

PHILP

More beach accesses should also be offered, Philp adds.

An existing bylaw to stop people from dumping debris such as broken tree branches and garden wastes onto beaches should be enforced more stringently, he says, but adds that it's a difficult bylaw to enforce.

Philp would also like to ensure that one-third of the 400-acre Oakwood property on West Saanich near Wains, formerly known as Kingswood, retained as farmland. It's difficult, says Philp, to make a strong case to maintain the remaining third of the land in the agricultural land reserve because it's not farmland.

Philp says he's happy with the municipality's decision on the new property assessment system which will allow landowners to pay new tax increases over a three-year period. Under legislative changes passed by the provincial government this year, about 40 per cent of the municipality's taxpayers will face tax increases of between five and 15 per cent.

Although some landowners will be disgruntled initially, he says, the end result will be fairer distribution of the tax load across the province.

INCREASES INEVITABLE

Tax increases for almost all North Saanich property owners are inevitable, says Philp, but there's no need for substantial boosts during the next two years because major capital expenditures in North Saanich aren't foreseen during that time.

A five-year road upgrading plan began this year and North Saanich ratepayers also committed themselves to higher recreational costs by approving construction of the Panorama Leisure Centre, he says, but most other costs are of a routine nature.

Philp is concerned about the Capital Regional Board meddling in routine administration and says it appears the board is taking over functions it wasn't designed to handle when regional boards were established by former Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell in 1966.

Population projections based on studies by the regional board seem unreliable, he says, and it's somewhat shaky to plan for future development based on the regional district's figures.

The municipality's relationships with the federal and provincial governments are good, says Philp, and the airport is a good source of revenue from the federal government.

Planning problems will hopefully be eliminated, he says, through more efficient use of the newly-formed Advisory Planning Committee, established last April under the Municipal Act.

Philp believes the committee hasn't been properly employed since its formation but admits the problem probably results from council's recent exhaustive work in drafting bylaws for future development.

PUBLIC MEETINGS

If elected mayor, he says, the committee would be encouraged to hold at least four public meetings a year to review the community plan continuously with local residents.

One of Philp's primary concerns in this election campaign is water. He says administration costs will be too high if the regional board is blessed with that responsibility and it would

REVIEW EXPEDITION ARRIVES SAFE IN NOOTKA

By JOSHUA PERLMUTTER

FRIENDLY COVE—British Columbia may be pouring thousands of dollars into the anniversary marking the arrival of Capt. James Cook on this coast 200 years ago, but it appears as if little or anything will be spent to commemorate the site of his actual landing.

Cook brought his ship Discovery into Friendly Cove at Nootka Sound on March 29, 1779. He and his crew were welcomed by Chief Maquinna of the Nootka Indians, a proud, warlike people who regularly hunted whales from their dugout canoes and maintained a sizeable village in Friendly Cove.

On Thursday, when a Review expedition news team entered the bay, the village was discovered to be deserted, save for a flock of migrating Canada geese.

Ed Kidder, head light keeper on station at the government-operated light house here in Friendly Cove for the past eight years, told The Review that he had heard a new wharf may be built for the Nootka Indian village, but so far nothing had happened.

"The Indians aren't too excited about all this," Kidder said. "Why should they be...Capt. Cook's arrival here meant the coming of booze and disease.

"Personally, I hope the government leaves the place just as it is...This is a real nice community. There was some talk of the government building the village a new wharf in honour of a Capt. Cook bicentennial, but so far, nothing has happened."

Kidder's assistant, Gordon Schewers, who has worked at the light station for the past three years, said that while only one or two families live at Friendly Cove during the winter,

PROVISIONAL BUDGET ADOPTED BY CENTRAL SAANICH COUNCIL

At its regular meeting Monday night Central Saanich council unanimously adopted finance chairman Frank Waring's proposed provisional budget for 1978.

The new budget totals $2,041,120 only $57,600 above this year's final budget.

Hill Opposes Oil Dock Suggestion

Ald. Dave Hill, Central Saanich's representative to the Capital Regional District board, warned his colleagues this week that one of the proposals submitted by CRD staff for the re-location of oil storage tanks in the Greater Victoria area was for an oil dock off Cowichan Head and a pipeline to a tank farm in the Keating industrial area.

Hill told a regular council meeting this proposal was number six or seven in a longer list of priorities or choices. He didn't think the idea was very practical and would oppose it should CRD give it more serious consideration.

The increases are for a known $2,600 increase in library expenses and $55,000 for undeterminable "contingencies" such as salary increases.

In all other aspects the budget is the same as this year's.

OFFICE CLOSED

The Sidney Review business and editorial offices on Third Street will be closed on Friday, Nov. 11 to observe Armistice Day. Normal business hours will resume the following Monday.

CHOOSE YOUR CANDIDATE

Civic election day is Nov. 19 and this year 27 candidates are scrambling for aldermanic, mayoralty and school board seats. The only mayoralty race is in North Saanich.

Voters in that municipality will cast their ballots between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. in the municipal hall on Mills Road. An advance poll will be held on the previous Thursday and Friday at the hall between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for those who will not be available to vote on Nov. 19.

Sidney voters will choose their candidates at Sidney Elementary School at Henry and Seventh. An advance poll for Sidney voters will be held on Nov. 16 at the town hall on Sidney Avenue between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

In Central Saanich, there are three polling places — Brentwood Elementary School, 7085 Wallace Dr., Keating Elementary School, 6843 Central Saanich Rd., and the municipal hall on Mount Newton Cross road. Advance polls will be held in the municipal hall on Nov. 17 and 18 between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

This week, Review reporters discussed various issues with each of the candidates. Those views are presented in three separate stories inside this week's issues. See pages 7, 8, and 9.

FIRE PREVENTION INSPECTOR RECOMMENDED

Two new municipal staff positions may be created if items added to the provisional budget at the meeting of North Saanich

Council last week, remain in the final budget.

A fire prevention inspector, at a salary of $16,000 a year was proposed by Ald. Owen Philp, chairman of the fire committee.

It was recommended in a report on fire organizations in the province that municipalities of more than 4,000 persons have a permanent paid staff member in the fire department, said Ald. George Westwood, seconding the motion to add it to the provisional budget. The motion passed unanimously.

A clerk-steno to work a half-day in water utilities and a half-day for the municipal office may also be hired next year at a salary of $9,800, if the item from the provisional budget remains in the final budget.

THEFT FROM AUTO

When two North Saanich girls left a party they had been attending at a Mt. Newton X Road address on Hallowe'en night, they discovered their car, which had not been locked, had been entered and their purses, containing some money, stolen.

Two tapes and an umbrella were also missing. The incident was not reported to Central Saanich police until Thursday.

On Saturday, police found a purse belonging to one of the girls, in a field in the vicinity of the theft.

End Development of Tsehum Harbour Says Westwood

Last year's road upgrading program wouldn't be as intense this year if Westwood is elected mayor, he says, because last year was a catch-up year. Council is committed, he adds, to improve roads in some areas and those commitments will be honoured.

He doesn't see the 400-acre Oakwood property, formerly known as Kingswood, as an issue but says any development proposals for the agricultural land would not receive his sympathy.

Westwood, says any decision to provide bus service for North Saanich would have to be made with extreme caution. Historically, he says, people scream for bus service, but when it's provided it doesn't get used and the taxpayers are stuck with paying the bill.

People in North Saanich live there expecting to have to provide their own transportation because of the rural nature of the municipality, he says, and there would have to be solid evidence that buses would be used.

Initially Westwood was in favour of the annual pheasant hunt on George Ayland's Wains Road farm because it was designed to financially help the farm. He's since become concerned with safety problems and the possibility of someone walking on a nearby road or in the field where the hunt's held, getting injured.

He opposes bow hunting for deer in North Saanich for similar reasons and because there's a greater chance with bow hunting that the animals would be injured but not killed.

BOW HUNTING RIDICULOUS

"Bow hunting for deer is ridiculous," he adds.

Sidney's courthouse should be re-established, he says, because the waste of RCMP man hours caused by trips back and forth to Victoria is "absolutely criminal."

There's also a need for a provincial court judge living in the community to preside in a local court where he or she would be understanding of the town and its standards.

The newly-appointed advisory Planning Committee, he says, should be used as a sounding board for residents to get their ideas across to politicians. The committee could seek opinions from the community in any manner it feels is acceptable and take those ideas to council for consideration.

Westwood has a campaign committee of about 20 supporters and is conducting his campaign by knocking on every door in North Saanich, telephone soliciting, and distribution of flyers. He has a financial chairman and Westwood doesn't know who his financial backers are or how much the campaign will cost.

He and his wife Alvina live at 9705 Glenelg with a 17-year-old daughter, Kathy. He also has a married 26-year-old daughter, Donna, who lives in Brentwood, and a 23-year-old son, Don who lives in Deep Cove.

Westwood is 51 years old and a member of the Progressive Conservative party.

NOOTKA SOUND EXPEDITION

"It's beautiful here in the summer...the water can get up to 68 degrees or so," he said. "The native children really enjoy themselves swimming in the bay."

"The Indian people I've come to know here really don't want the place to change," said Scheweers.

"I read that the provincial government was thinking of having some of the tall ships visit here," he said. "It just wouldn't work. There would be too many people for the size of the village."

He said two families were resident this winter at Friendly Cove.

"They are in Gold River just now, but should be back in a day or so."

"It's not the best climate here in the winter," he said. "A few days ago the wind was blowing a steady 90 knots."

The lightkeeper said that Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf had visited the community this summer to ascertain what could be done by the provincial government to commemorate Capt. Cook's landing here.

"I heard talk of the government offering to build duplicates of the original long houses," he said, "but I don't think anything will come of it. I'm not even sure that the Indian people want it."

CABIN BOY Frank Mahalek washes up.

The Review last week dispatched a "Capt. Cook expedition" to Nootka Sound in order to discover for its readers just what present day conditions exist here. Sailing non-stop from Sidney, the 47-foot steel cutter Gungha arrived in Friendly Cove having had fair winds from Victoria, her master reported this week by wireless from the ship.

The photographic team has taken pictures of the area and explored both Nootka Sound and Friendly Cove. It was expected that the vessel would weigh anchor, weather permitting, on Monday evening and make passage for Cape Scott at the north end of Vancouver Island, then return south to Sidney by way of Vancouver Island's so-called inside passage.

Review General Manager A.G. Dagg said he had given the expedition 24 hours off in order for the ship's crew to enjoy some well earned hunting and fishing in the area. The full report of the expedition's activities will appear in a future issue of The Review.

SUSPECTS QUESTIONED

In their continuing investigation of the smash and grab raid last week at the Brentwood Pharmacy, Central Saanich police have questioned two suspects, a 19-year-old girl and an 18-year-old boy.

While police would not disclose details of their investigation, it's assumed that one of the suspects owns a car answering the description of the one used in the break-in and that the couple's account of their whereabouts on the night in question was somewhat vague.

McTAVISH ROAD STORE SOUND

McTavish Road Store is not dangerous structurally, North Saanich Council learned this week.

"The building is in generally sound structural condition," said a consulting civil engineer in a report commissioned by the store at the request of council in September.

Two minor repairs were suggested by the consulting engineer and a spokesman for Oakcrest Park Estates, Ltd., Timothy Durkin said, "We'll probably fix both those, I can't see any reason not to."

He said the company had corrected all the fire hazards pointed out earlier by council's inspectors including redoing the boiler room and adding fire proof doors.

Council is waiting for a report from the fire marshal's office in Vancouver on the condition of the building since the repairs were carried out.

Originally the municipality's building and fire inspectors made a list of several points that needed to be corrected so that the building would be safe.

Council was particularly concerned because the building was used as living quarters as well.

Teenager Found Unconscious

When Central Saanich police approached a cavalcade of three vehicles parked on the roadside in the 6900 block of Wallace Drive just after midnight last Friday, they heard the "clink" of bottles emanating from one of them.

On investigation, police found nine sealed bottles of beer and 10 empties in the possession of two minors, males, from up-island. They were both charged.

On investigating further, police found a teenage girl lying unconscious in her own vomit on a mattress in the back of a van. The ambulance was called and the girl was taken to hospital.

Parents of all three were traced and notified.

Elections

Sufficient candidates have been nominated in Sidney, Central and North Saanich to ensure competition in the municipal elections to be held on Saturday, November 19.

The ideal situation is seen in North Saanich where there is a straight-forward contest for the mayorality, and keen rivalry for aldermanic seats. The fact that nobody has seen fit to contest Rubymay Parrott's seat on Saanich School Board is a tribute to her long personal service and efficiency.

Central Saanich has no mayorality election this year, but there is healthy competition for aldermanic seats, and a three-way battle for Saanich School Board representation. Here is often seen a reflection of the old Ward system, as the three polling stations of Brentwood, Keating and Saanichton tend to reflect differing parochial preferences.

In Sidney where elections are all for a two-year term, it must be regretted that there was no challenger for the mayor's chair. While election by acclamation may be a personal satisfaction to the office holder, it seriously detracts from public interest in what is left of the competition, and is usually followed by a disappointing percentage of attention at the polls. It is no reflection on Mayor Dick Leigh's capability to regret that his election was unopposed.

OSCAR THULIN

There are those who perform valuable work for the community in the spotlight of publicity, and there are others equally dedicated in service to their fellow men whose good deeds are consistent year after year, but with no thought of personal recognition.

The late Oscar Thulin was in the latter category, for he became immediately involved in local organizations when he and his family moved to Brentwood Bay 12 years ago on his retirement as Fire Chief at Campbell River. He had served the department for 25 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Thulin were continuously active in the work of the church of St. Michael and All Angels at Royal Oak, and Oscar was a member of Sidney Lodge AF and FM. It was his association with Sidney Rotary Club that brought him a large number of new friends who found him always the most agreeable and unassuming of companions. He was 31 years in Rotary and active to the last. Over a long period it was his pleasure to edit, produce and circulate the monthly Bulletin, and his comments were often witty and worthy of a wider circulation.

Oscar's basement work area was always orderly and tidy, a reflection of his quiet and thoughtful personality. He will be fondly remembered by his friends and by his many associates in his work for the community. (H.V.G.)

Hands on Wheel

RCMP warn bike riders to keep their hands on the handle bars of their two wheeled vehicles because they will be cracking down on careless riders.

Police say it is dangerous to ride without hands because even hitting a small rock will throw the bike out of control. icy road conditions worsen the problem, said, RCMP.

By town bylaw, police may seize bikes

— Lawrence Binyon

Possibly the most poignant verse in English literature, these immortal words express the thoughts of all who are gathered in remembrance at war memorials and in churches. Despite the cynicism and pragmatic attitudes of our times, and an appalling disregard of the spiritual and moral values cherished by our ancestors, there is on Armistice Day the hope that the finer qualities of life are not disregarded by the mass of the people.

The ranks of those who celebrated cease fire in 1918 have thinned; memories of Vimy Ridge and countless other sanguinary events by land, sea and in the air have faded. Inevitably the heroics of Dieppe, Dunkirk, and the horrors of World War 2 will recede also as time takes its toll of the combatants.

Although governments have lamentably failed to adequately provide for the war disabled veterans, the common people do indeed recognise the debt that is owed to those who answered the call. We think not only of the valiant and dauntless, but also of the timid and sensitive souls who went into battle in fear and trembling, scorned to take advantage of the processes of conscientious objection. Their courage was of the highest order.

Roses are still blooming in Picardy, poppies still blanket the Flanders fields. All in due season. Grief for the past is tempered by the promise of perpetual renewal, and so may the observance of Armistice Day continue in all solemnity through the years.

NEWS ITEM(?) REVIEW Sends expedition to Nootka Sound to check out rumours of visits by unusual vessels and strange-looking beings...

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor,
The Review, Sir:

Unless the residents of North Saanich are prepared to accept a major increase in property taxes and substantial erosion of the quality of life in this municipality, they had better think carefully before casting their ballots on November 19. All things are not as represented. If we will abide by certain clear principles we can avoid much of the possible disaster.

1. Mayor. We are a small municipality with a good administrative staff. The job should not require more than about 10 percent of the mayor's time. A so-called full-time mayor will prove to be a costly and dangerous nuisance. However the mayor's job should be a 100% worry, because this municipality is the target of nearly every fast-buck land speculator in North America, who are not in it for our benefit. Furthermore there is no limit to the number of greedy pressure groups wanting this or that at the taxpayers' expense, who do not hesitate to bribe or bully their way.

To serve us properly, the Mayor must be a person paying sufficient property taxes to be tax-conscious, having sufficient family roots in this area to oppose its desecration by the speculators, and sufficient financial independence and political courage to be able to say "no" to the pressure groups.

Colonel O.B. Philp meets these basic requirements. 2. Regional Director. As presently constituted the Regional District is an unlimited disaster, completely out of control by the electorate and having unlimited powers to tax us. Although the government is trying to bring it to heel, I am not optimistic. As a simple matter of self-defense, our regional representative has got to be a hard-minded businessman who has no need for the over-generous remuneration for the position, and who will see through their empire-building schemes, and will use his energies to protect us from the consequences of any enforced involvement therein.

Bob Thompson represents our best hope in this thankless job.

3. Aldermen. For God's sake let us keep party politics out of the Municipal Council. Although I am a conservative, I have observed that the right side to the council has been the first to yield to the developers, and the most eager proponent of increased municipal expenditures and tax rates. Party labels mean nothing.

Aldermen should be selected on the basis of what they have in past years contributed to the community in such unpaid jobs as ratepayers associations, service clubs, community and sports groups. The paid positions, however high-sounding, are no indication of the candidate's basic motivation to serve his fellow man, which is the prime attribute of a good alderman. Beware of the ones who need the money, as there are many wishing to buy favours.

Yours sincerely,
Trevor Davis
Former mayor and alderman

Editor,
The Review, Sir:

In the coming municipal election in North Saanich we are to elect a new Mayor. I have hope that a large number of voters will turn out to exercise their prerogative.

I should like to recommend support for George Westwood. I have worked with him in another field and know him to be dedicated and a hard worker at any task he undertakes. He has now had years of experience in the municipal world, and is well equipped to carry out the office of Mayor.

I also believe that it is his philosophy, that the Mayor and Council are the servants of the electorate and not its masters.

So Please,
Yours truly,
(P.H. Lee-Wright)

Editor,
The Review, Sir:

While it is a year since I retired from the North Saanich Council I, no doubt in common with others similarly situated, am curious to discover what constitutes an effective election campaign. The first two elections in which I was involved were relatively quiet and fundamentally consisted of the distribution of a "Message to Electors" and attendance at an All-Candidates Meeting. Things changed with the advent of sophisticated political manoeuvring, to me inappropriate in a municipality the size of North Saanich. Relative to the current campaign one fact that pleases me, and should please the candidates, is that the executives of the various rate-payers' groups, each with relatively limited membership, have refrained from publicly supporting any candidate—at least to date. No elected official should be, or appear to be, indebted to any organized pressure group.

Editor,
The Review, Sir:

We must express the deep concern felt by our respective property owners associations about the unjustified scope and cost of the Saanich Peninsula Water Commission's proposal to pipe water to the three peninsula municipalities.

We submit that the recently approved purchase of $800,000 of pipe is a costly error and is wholly unsupported by engineering judgment. For example:

1. The pipeline route has not been selected.

2. The cost of water from the GVWD has not been negotiated.

3. Financial participation by agricultural users has not been resolved.

4. The cost of distribution lines within municipalities has not been considered.

5. The cost of installing the pipe system is admitted to be only a guesstimate unsupported by tenders or engineering studies.

6. No economic or technical studies have been made either of the proposed pipelines or of alternative line sizes or routes.

We have carefully examined the supporting materials submitted by the Capital Regional engineering staff and find it to be only a recitation of the viewpoint of the Water Commission. The materials that have been presented have not been supported by engineering studies and data; it is therefore impossible to have the scope, the cost, or even the economic feasibility of the project confirmed by an independent engineering consultant.

None of the data presented thus far in any way establishes that the suggested rate structures will yield sufficient revenues to meet the capital and operating charges of the scheme, which themselves have not yet been determined.

We feel compelled to present our concern to the area ratepayers. We are afraid that the taxpayers in the three northern municipalities will find themselves burdened with unreasonably (and unnecessarily) heavy costs for water. The whole project needs to be carefully re-examined before any irreversible commitments are made.

Thank you, Mr. Editor, for giving us this opportunity to express our concern.

Editor,

The Review, Sir:

I read with amazement your November 2 issue in which Alderman Lang "charges" that Sidney Council does not control the spending of the Recreation Commission. The article seems to indicate that Alderman Martin and myself are not willing to provide financial information from the Commission to the Council and this is definitely not true. All financial matters are a matter of public record at all times and are fully available to Alderman Lang or any of the other members of Council.

I would like to set the matter of the formation of the Recreation Commission straight so that the taxpayers of Sidney and North Saanich are aware of the facts. The Tri-Municipal Rec Commission was a consortium of the Councils of Sidney, North Saanich and Central Saanich and as such each Council had complete financial input for their share. When Central Saanich failed to support recreation to the levels of Sidney and North Saanich, the Tri-Municipal Recreation Commission failed. Since Sidney and North Saanich decided to proceed with the Panorama Leisure Centre they wanted to ensure that neither municipality would withdraw their financial support in the future and leave the other Municipality to support it alone. It was then that both Councils requested that the Capital Regional District take over the function of providing recreation to the two Municipalities with the costs being shared on a 50% population - 50% assessment basis. The Letters Patent gave full financial control and operating control to the Regional District in order to avoid the problems experienced by the previous commission. Alderman Lang was a member of Sidney Council when the Letters Patent were passed.

I would like to emphasize that the whole Regional Board does not vote on financial matters of the Peninsula Recreation Commission, only the members from Sidney and North Saanich and this leaves full control to the elected members of the communities being served. Both these Regional Directors must be members of their respective councils and therefore the Councils do have an avenue of input if they choose to use it. The budget is prepared by the Commission itself and there are two members of each Council on the commission together with three members of the communities who are appointed by the Councils. This would certainly indicate to me a considerable amount of control by the Councils but still allowing input from the public. As a further avenue of input, all Commission meetings are open to the public and to the best of my knowledge Alderman Lang has never attended, although some other members of Council have on a number of occasions.

I fail to see how the Council can expect to have the right to approve expenditures when they do not participate in operating the Recreation function for which the money is required. In my opinion this whole matter was raised by Alderman Lang as a cheap political trick to damage the financial reputation of Alderman Martin and myself in order to further his own campaign to replace me as Sidney's representative on the Capital Regional Board. Mr. Lang's views against recreation have been known for a long time and his sudden interest really amazes me. I am really pleased that Mr. Lang has chosen to run against me for the Regional Board seat (since he withdrew from the race last year) so that once and for all we can see who the voters of Sidney want to represent them on the Capital Regional District Board.

Yours truly,
Jerry P. Tregaskis,
Alderman & Regional Board Director,
Town of Sidney.

HIT-AND-RUN

Police are looking for a light coloured pick-up truck after the vehicle was seen leaving the yard of a house that had been hit last week.

The house at 9824 Resthaven Drive was damaged when a vehicle ran into it and tore the watertap off the outside wall causing water to spout out.

Police said they guess the vehicle accidentally left the road and hit the house.

Young Faces In Sidney Election Fight

There are nine candidates seeking six aldermanic seats in Sidney, with all incumbents except Gib Baal defending their positions. Both Mayor Dick Leigh and school trustee Norma Sealey were acclaimed.

All seats are for two-year terms.

The Sidney candidates can be viewed and questioned on Cable 10 next Tuesday beginning at 8 p.m. The program will be sponsored by the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce.

BY BRUCE OBE

MARTIN

Name: Ross Martin
Address: 2010 Courser
Age: 34
Occupation: Commercial foods teacher at Stellys Secondary School.

Ross Martin has served a total of three years as a Sidney alderman. He was originally elected for a one-year term in 1973, defeated in 1974 and elected to a two-year term in 1975.

His main objective in seeking re-election is to offer himself as the type of person not traditionally found on Sidney council. Martin says he has no particular axes to grind nor does he have any commercial or industrial interests in the community.

Martin is determined to see the completion of a waterfront beautification project which would include a boulevard from the Sidney Hotel to Eastview Drive.

"I see Sidney as a sea town but we really haven't discovered that fact," Martin says.

Martin supports the suggestion of a breakwater at the foot of Beacon Avenue to help give the town its own identity. If the attention of Sidney residents and businessmen is focused on making the town unique, the federal government might be encouraged to give more serious thought to a breakwater.

Sidney's recreation problems are far from over, says Martin, despite the fact that the Panorama Leisure Centre is nearing completion.

Policies for ice and pool time must be refined, he says, and there is still a great demand for outside playing fields.

Martin favours the idea of a bar in the leisure centre and says that "recreation is defined in many ways for many people."

Many people would like to enjoy a drink among friends after a swim while others might be less inclined to go to a place where the primary objective is to drink. A bar would dissuade people from taking liquor into the centre, Martin says, adding that particular problem is minor.

The main drawback, he says, is that the use of the lounge would be restricted by a liquor licence and the decision on a bar should be made by the people who use the centre.

The major weakness with the current council, Martin says, is that its members frequently tend to legislate in retrospect. There is a "fair degree of ineptness" which arises from inability rather than inexperience.

Martin is not a member of any political party and lives in Sidney with his wife Camille and two youngsters Colleen, 9, and Nickie, 6.

HOLLINGWORTH

Name: Hugh Hollingworth
Address: 2453 Beacon Ave.
Age: 44
Occupation: Sales Manager at Cornell Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd.

Hugh Hollingworth has served on Sidney council for four years in the past and made an unsuccessful bid for the mayor's seat in 1975. In 1974 he was Sidney's representative on the Capital Regional Board.

His primary concern is to control development in Sidney by ensuring that council sticks with the existing community plan approved by the regional board.

The provision of water for Sidney will inevitably promote both commercial and residential development, says Hollingworth, and council must not only control the amount of development but the types of proposed housing.

"I don't want to see a bunch of cheap condominiums go in," says Hollingworth. "I don't want to see cheap development."

Increased development of residential areas, he says, will add to the costs of police and fire protection, recreation, water, and other municipal services.

Hollingworth says council must hold the line on tax increases. He says the existing council was successful in minimizing tax increases and the new council should be able to maintain the increases at this year's level.

The main concern with liquor being served in the Panorama Leisure Centre is possible problems with youth, he says, but a bar in the centre would likely attract the odd visitor who doesn't normally use the facilities and it would provide a small source of revenue.

There's already a good cross-section of recreational activities in Sidney, says Hollingworth, such as sailing, swimming, skating, baseball, curling, or lacrosse.

"What else could we ask for?"

Hollingworth strongly supports a breakwater at the foot of Beacon Avenue, "even if we've got to get the nice people in Sidney to get their wheelbarrows and cart the rocks down."

Another possibility would be to install an old freighter or tanker as a breakwater, Hollingworth says.

Hollingworth, a member of the provincial Social Credit party and federal Progressive Conservative party, is married with four daughters.

TREGASKIS

Name: Jerry Tregaskis
Address: 2264 Gail Pl.
Age: 34
Occupation: credit manager for Butler Bros.

Jerry Tregaskis, a two-year veteran on Sidney council, is seeking a second term as both alderman and regional board director. Tregaskis has been Sidney's representative on the regional board for the last year.

Tregaskis sees the provision of water for Sidney at a reasonable cost as the primary issue in the current election campaign, as well as stem control over development resulting from the water.

A strong council, unlike the present "wishy washy" council, is needed to keep development under control, he says. There will soon be pressure from property developers wanting to build in Sidney, he says, and council will have to take a tough stand to keep construction within the boundaries established under the town's official community plan.

Tregaskis, who topped the polls in Sidney last year, is also concerned about how municipal tax dollars are spent.

Too many politicians promise to scrutinize expenditures during a campaign but forget making the promise after becoming elected, he says, and it's a serious promise which should be kept.

Tregaskis supports a bar for the Panorama Leisure Centre and says a user survey should be conducted to determine the wishes of those who use the centre.

The availability of liquor might encourage parents to stay and watch their children swim or skate and alcohol which is currently being taken into the dressing rooms and observation stands may be left at home. Tregaskis says the Oak Bay recreation centre showed a net profit of $80,000 last year.

One major project in which Tregaskis would like to be involved is beautification of Sidney's waterfront in the downtown area. He supports a breakwater for the foot of Beacon Avenue and says a central theme for the downtown area could become a reality with the backing of the business community.

Tregaskis and his wife Margaret have a seven-month-old son named Jason. Tregaskis is not a member of any political party.

ETHIER

Name: Bernard Ethier
Address: 2245 James White Blvd.
Age: 54
Occupation: Engineer, B.C. Ferries

Bernard Ethier, a one-year veteran on Sidney council, adamantly refuses to be labelled "politician."

"I'm not a politician," says Ethier. "I'm a concerned citizen."

Politician, he says is "a dirty word because nobody trusts them."

Ethier made "five or six" unsuccessful attempts at winning a seat on Sidney council in past elections and had one losing bid for a position as a local school trustee.

He says he spent his first year on council listening, learning the parliamentary process, and familiarizing himself with municipal bylaws.

Ethier's seeking re-election because he believes the people of Sidney have an investment in his previous service on council and that investment should be honoured for at least another term.

Water, of course, is an issue this election, Ethier says, and he feels the administration costs under the current financing proposal would be too high.

Water is a complicated issue on Saanich Peninsula, he says, and Ethier would like to be a part of the decisions on the costs of providing it to Sidney residents.

A tax increase resulting from the Panorama Leisure Centre can be expected this year, and Ethier hopes to encourage the peninsula recreation commission to try and hold the line on spending to keep the increase minimal.

He doesn't believe a bar in the recreation centre would be beneficial because there are too many children who use the facilities. A bar should have been included in the original plans if it was to be included at all.

Ethier supports the suggestion of a breakwater to improve tourism in Sidney and was involved in passing a council motion to write to Esquimalt-Saanich MP Don Munro and Hugh Curtis, MLA for Saanich and the Islands, to encourage the federal and provincial governments to support a breakwater.

Tourism in Sidney could also be enhanced by a specific event which is directly linked to the town, such as the Nanaimo bathtub race. Ethier says the Great Sidney Rowing Review, currently sponsored annually by The Sidney Review, could be promoted more vigorously and prizes could be bigger.

Such a promotion would likely attract more competitors and spectators from out of town.

Ethier, a member of the Progressive Conservative party, is married with a son and a daughter.

HOPE

Name: Robert Hope
Address: 2093 Piercy Ave.
Age: 30
Occupation: Draftsman for B.C. Telephone Co.

Robert Hope, current chairman of the Peninsula Recreation Commission, anticipates substantial tax increases in the coming year and wants to keep them at a minimum.

Hope says taxes resulting from costs for policing, sewage, water and recreation will inevitably rise this year and the council must ensure that the wishes of Sidney's taxpayers are met in assessing and distributing those taxes.

Hope also believes this year is only the beginning of a heavy tax period for Sidney residents.

"This is the start and if we don't watch ourselves it could snowball into something large," he says.

It appears that Sidney is getting the worst deal from the existing proposals for water financing formulas, Hope says, and the interests of Sidney water users must be considered with particular care.

One of Hope's primary concerns is a tendency by the current and previous councils to forget about listening to the people who vote the councillors into office.

The mayor and alderman are probably pressed for time, says Hope, but keeping an ear on individual citizens' problems and ideas will be among his priorities.

Hope's been doing some research on court facilities and has found that the economic benefits of reintroducing a court to Sidney would be few and far between.

"It would be nice to have a court back again, as long as it doesn't put a strain on our municipal system," says Hope.

The decision on a bar in the Panorama Leisure Centre should be left with those who use the facilities and the recreation commission will likely canvass people within the year to determine their preferences.

Sidney has a "very professional recreation system," Hope says, and as people become more aware of the programs offered at the centre, they'll use the facility more.

There's a need for other types of recreation in Sidney, he says, but it must be determined exactly what types of recreation are needed.

People should be encouraged, says Hope, to develop the land in Sidney which now is zoned light industrial. Such development, however, should be carefully scrutinized by council before being approved, he adds.

Hope, who is not a member of any political party, lives with his wife Terry and two children Shannon, 5, and Ryan, 3.

LANG

Name: Jim Lang
Address: 10173 Melissa
Age: 64
Occupation: Retired economic development commissioner with Prince George Regional District.

Jim Lang, a two-year veteran on Sidney council, is seeking a second term because he feels the provision of water for Saanich Peninsula could cause uncontrolled growth if improperly monitored.

Lang says he will ask the mayor to appoint a committee specifically to study and recommend various methods of population control. Until now, growth in Sidney has been limited by the lack of water, says Lang, but when the water arrives in 1978, hundreds of building permits can be released.

Lang is a firm supporter of committees and says it's committees which do most of the council work. He says he already contributes three days a week toward his aldermanic duties and anyone seeking municipal office should be prepared to offer more time than the amount required by council meetings.

"I'm a big believer in committees," he says, "Attending council meetings is not enough."

Lang is also a candidate for the seat as Sidney's director on the Capital Regional Board because he believes the board's power over many of Sidney's affairs could get out of control without proper representation from the town council.

The board is solely responsible for water and recreation on the peninsula, Lang says, and the opinions of Sidney council as a single body must be accurately conveyed to other members of the regional board.

With hundreds of thousands of dollars to spend on the provision of necessary municipal services, he says, there is little money left over each year for expenditures which are unexpected or not absolutely necessary and Lang wants to ensure that those extra dollars are channelled in the right direction.

Lang is among those who favour a bar in the Panorama Leisure Centre primarily because it would make the centre available for functions such as banquets, wedding receptions or luncheons.

"I'm sure that it could be controlled and we would have no problem with minors," he says, "I think the facility should be there."

Lang also supports the idea of a central theme and beautification for Beacon Avenue but says traffic problems in the downtown area should be solved first.

People often forget that there's a recession in Canada and it's impossible to try and get too much at once.

"We've got to take it very slowly," he says.

Lang served four years as a Prince George school trustee, two as chairman, and isn't a member of any political party but was a card-carrying Progressive Conservative.

He lives with his wife Helen and his children are no longer at home.

SOWERBY

Name: Eleanor Sowerby
Address: 9884 Fifth St.
Age: Withheld by request
Occupation: housewife

Eleanor Sowerby has served a one-year term on Sidney council and wants to take a crack at a two-year term.

She says she'd like to be a part of the decisions concerning tax increases but isn't able to offer any specific suggestions aimed at keeping tax boosts minimal.

The tax dollars in Sidney are "getting spread pretty thin," says Sowerby, and soon there will be more demands than money to meet them.

Asked how she would keep spending under control if re-elected, Sowerby replied: "You've got me stumped."

Normal tax increases will have to be met, she says, but every effort must be made to avoid unnecessary additions to the existing tax burden.

The town's tax base could be broadened by releasing building permits for people wanting to build homes and through the development of light industry, Sowerby says.

Development of light industry, she says, would also provide more jobs for local people.

Sowerby believes, however, that basic services must be provided before any major developments, residential or commercial, are approved.

People who have been holding property in Sidney since the early 1970s but have been unable to build due to the water shortage, should be given priority, she adds.

A bar in the recreation centre is not a priority of Sowerby's although she doesn't object to the suggestion. It's unlikely

Low Key Campaign in Central Saanich

There are three two-year term seats in Central Saanich defended by incumbents. Most challengers filed nomination papers to avoid acclamations.

There are a total of five contestants for the three term seats and three challengers for one seat at Central Saanich's representative on Saanich school board.

A Central Saanich all-candidates' meeting, sponsored by Central Saanich Ratepayers Association, is to be held in evening at Elementary School 18 p.m. Nov. 15.

BY GORDON EWAN

SHARPE
Name: Dick Sharpe
Address: 1774 Prosser Ave.
Age: 56

Occupation: Chief electrical draftsman at Dockyard.

Dick Sharpe, making his third try for a seat on council, is the chief electrical draftsman at the dockyard and is heavily involved in community affairs.

He is a director of the Central Saanich Ratepayers

Association, a member of the Advisory Planning Committee, the family court representative for Central Saanich and a member of the South Saanich Farmers Institute. He regularly attends municipal council meetings and reports proceedings to the organizations to which he belongs.

Sharpe says his principal interests and sympathies lie with the farming industry in this area. When asked if he would volunteer information on any political affiliation he may have, Sharpe laughed and replied: "Well enough people saw me at the Pollen/Munro nomination meeting the other night to know what party I belong to."

As to his reasons for running again, Sharpe answered that it looked like there would be no opposition to an acclamation in Central Saanich.

"Democratic systems," Sharpe says, "should not be allowed to go by default and I feel I have something to contribute to local government besides taxes."

When asked about issues, Sharpe says he would continue to press for the official adoption of the Community Plan.

"I fully support the long range aspects of the plan," Sharpe says, "particularly those to preserve the ratio of agricultural to other land uses."

"I am going to press strongly for planning to improve recreational facilities by up-grading and extending scenic foot paths - not concrete sidewalks - bikeways and playing fields in conjunction with road improvements and recreational projects. This is what I spoke for last year and I still stand by it."

Asked if he had any comment on the performance of the present council, Sharpe thought a bit and stated: "By and large this has been an approachable council and I would like to serve on it."

He and his wife Ella have four grown children.

PRICE

Name: David Price
Address: 869 Clarke Rd.
Age: 45

Occupation: superintendent of passenger services for B.C. Steamships.

David Price is making his second bid to become a member of Central Saanich council.

He lives with his wife, Lorraine Janet at their Brentwood residence. The couple has one married daughter and one grown up son, both of whom live out of the district.

Price is the superintendent for passenger services for the Princess Marguerite operation, but still has time for other activities.

He was a trustee on the former Brentwood Water Board and was a central Saanich delegate on the Peninsula Recreation Commission.

He served for five years as the commanding officer of 676 Air Cadet Squadron and is currently the adjutant for the 11th Victoria Service Battalion, a militia unit.

Price declined to state any political affiliation, saying, "I don't think as alderman it invites any political implication, whatsoever."

Price says his main reason for contesting the election is that he believes in a very democratic process.

"People should not be elected by acclamation. It looked that way when I took my papers out, but I see I have since been joined," Price says.

In Price's opinion, there aren't any burning issues but, he says, he can provide business management experience.

"I shall be very interested in the water board," Price says. "I shall be very inquisitive as to what's going on. I am not completely satisfied that things are running as smoothly as they should."

Price's other objectives are to establish complete co-operation with other municipalities on any project of mutual concern and cited standardization of supplies as one example.

He would also like to see more co-ordination in the planning of road paving and other public works.

Price would also investigate all possible funds available to the municipality through federal and provincial legislation and programs.

In commenting on the performance of the current council, Price says, "I think this council has tried extremely hard, but I won't let them get into the position of being complacent. I think a fresh new approach to some problems is needed."

LAZARZ

Name: Percival Peter Lazarz
Address: 1789 Cultra Ave.
Age: 42

Occupation: Fur Farmer

Percy Lazarz is seeking re-election for another term, having served on Central Saanich Council for 9½ years.

During his current term, Lazarz was chairman of the public works committee and also of the street lighting and fire protection committees.

Percy Lazarz lives with his wife Carol and three sons and one daughter, all of whom live out in the family business of raising mink, on their five-acre farm in Saanichton.

One son attends university, another son and daughter are in high school and the remaining son attends Saanichton Elementary School.

As well as his commitments to council business, Lazarz also finds the time for other community activities. He is a member and past-president of the Sidney Rotary Club, a member of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society and umpires for Little League and Babe Ruth baseball games.

As for political affiliations, Lazarz said, "I generally vote for the man. I have bounced around a lot and who I would support depends on the election issues at the time."

Lazarz's reason for seeking another term is to keep up the continuing work the municipality has started on, particularly in public works, such as the planned improvements to West Saanich Road in the Brentwood business area and to Keating X Road in the industrial area. Also in general, road construction, improved drainage and construction of safe pedestrian walks and to continue the street lighting programme.

Lazarz does not see any major issues in this year's election, but there are, he says, continuing important things for council to do. In addition to the public works he mentioned, Lazarz also names the resolution of the water situation, the maintenance of the community plan and the provision of strong support for the rural and agricultural community.

In commenting on the proceedings of council during the past year, Lazarz told The Review, "Things have run pretty smoothly. Sure there are differences of opinion - and there is nothing wrong with that, but council has always been able to arrive at an acceptable solution."

WARING

Name: Frank Waring
Address: 7206 Babington Lane
Age: 64

Occupation: Business Manager.

Frank Waring is completing his first two-year term on Central Saanich council and has served previously for five years on Saanich Council.

During this term, Waring is chairman of the finance and legislative committees. He also took over the subdivision and zoning committee when its chairman became incapacitated last February.

Waring lives with his wife Frances Mary in a house he built on property on the Brentwood waterfront, he bought some several years beforehand. Their two grown sons do not live in Central Saanich.

Waring has been in the electrical business all his working life and now manages an electrical supply business in Victoria.

Waring's other interests include directorship of the Victoria Symphony Society and membership with the Victoria Rotary Club. He is also a member of the Royal United Services Institute and of the Masonic Lodge. A spin-off from his business interests, he was past president of the Victoria Electric Club.

As for any political affiliation, Waring told The Review "I believe a person in municipal office should not be actively engaged in party politics."

Waring's reasons for seeking another term are: "I find municipal work interesting and an excellent way to give public service."

Waring says there are no contentious issues this election.

"However," he says, "there are always the pressures of growth and associated decisions regarding land use and services."

"There are one or two important things for council," Waring says, "These are the distribution systems for water and what to charge. I would like to see provisions made for depreciation and foreseeable expansions."

As finance chairman, Waring says he is also concerned about the impact of the new provincially imposed tax assessment system. His provisional budget accepted by his colleagues for next year is substantially the same as this year's.

Waring is also chairman of the ad-hoc committee planning the new public safety (police station and fire hall) addition to the municipal hall.

"Council had talked about this building for years," Waring says, "but I was the one who got it done. It will be going to tender very soon."

LAMONT

Name: Ray Lamont
Address: 2946 Lamont Rd.
Age: 59

Occupation: airline employee

As an airline employee, Ray Lamont is foreman of ramp operations at the International Airport at Pat Bay.

Apart from his employment, Ray Lamont says that municipal interests takes all of his time. He was on the inaugural council when Central Saanich was first formed and has served for 20 years as alderman. He is, nevertheless, a member of the Saanich Historical Artifacts Society.

On his latest term as alderman, Ray Lamont has been the chairman of the parks and recreation committee. He has several projects still underway, such as the provision of six acres more playing fields at Centennial Park for soccer and league baseball and the erection of a modular unit, being built by carpentry students at Claremont School, to meet some of the communities' recreational needs. He would like to be re-elected to see these projects through to their completion.

Ray Lamont says he has no political affiliations at all. "It is my belief," Lamont told The Review, "as being an alderman on municipal council we should interest ourselves solely in ground roots municipal needs without question of party affiliation. There is no room for party politics in municipal administration - No way."

Summing up his platform, Lamont declared, "I am going for this coming term on my previous record, having served Central Saanich under the leadership of former mayors Sidney Pickles, H.R. Brown, Gordon Lee, and Arnie Galbraith and our present mayor Jean Butler."

"My aim is to carry on with the collective thinking of the present council for the continuation of sound municipal administration for the residents of Central Saanich. There have been many matters brought before council this year and resolved through constructive debate, the end results being for the best interests of Central Saanich."

CULLIS
Name: Ron Edwin Cullis
Address: 2015 Skyline Rd.

Age: 31

Occupation: Firefighter

Ron Cullis was the first person to come forward and file nomination papers for the school trustee's seat left vacant by retiring trustee Harry Tobin. At age 31, he is also the youngest candidate seeking public office, at least in Central Saanich.

Cullis, a firefighter with the Saanich fire department, has made his home in the Keating district of Central Saanich. His family consists of his wife Phyllis and two daughters, Karlene, 3, and Chantelle, 5.

Up to now, Cullis says, he has been too busy completing his house and garden to have become involved in any community affairs, so his nomination is his initial entry. He also has not acquired any political affiliations.

Cullis, himself a university graduate, says, "I am a candidate in this election because as a parent of a young family just entering the school system, I feel I have a personal stake in the educational future of my children. Too many students leaving the public school system do not appear to have the aptitudes or opportunities necessary to pursue a vocation oriented future."

Cullis sees no particularly controversial election issue.

"There are no real problems," he says, "Most are ongoing problems related to the areas of curriculum, planning and budgeting and close control

FAST

Name: Larry Fast
Address: 1885 Dean Park Road
Age: 33
Occupation: lawyer

Larry Fast has considerable experience in municipal law and has several local governments as clients. He is also involved with conservation groups such as the Nature Conservancy of Canada.

He is running for a one-year council seat on a platform of careful development in the municipality's existing residential areas. He says he wants to avoid unneeded types of development which can unproportionately raise service costs. He also encourages small scale technological development that is a natural by-product of such facilities as the airport and the oceanographic institute.

"Creative use of solar energy in housing developments is something I'm interested in and would personally like to encourage in the area," Fast said.

"There are any number of ways available to control the development, if we have to," says Fast, referring to proposed development at Bosun's Marina. "But the facts are not in on it, yet, and there is very little point in generating a lot of heat now."

"As a naturalist, I favour more parks...but it doesn't require large expenditures of municipal funds," he says.

There are examples in other areas of long highways and trails connecting existing parks and even using private land making a chain of parks, he says. Such a system, says Fast, designed for the future, would make the municipality more attractive and would serve recreation purposes.

He and his wife, Karen, have two young children. He does not belong to a political party.

LAPHAM

Name: John Lapham
Address: 540 Downey Road
Age: 54
Occupation: semi-retired electrical contractor

John Lapham has served four years on council and is seeking a two-year aldermanic position because of his continuing concern about land-use in the municipality.

Formerly, he was president of the Deep Cove Property Owner's Association for three years and president of the Society for Pollution of the Environment Control.

Even though the community plan and zoning bylaws are in place, he says, he is still concerned about the pressure that will be put on council for marina and large lot development.

He says he is also concerned about "budgetary problems".

"An expansive type of budget would shoot holes in the community plan," says Lapham.

On the water situation, he says he supports the idea of joining the Greater Victoria Water Board and would like the suggestion fully investigated.

He says the costs would be less because the GVWD already has the engineering expertise.

On the Bosun's Marina development Lapham says: "Personally I'd like to see Bob Wright go away, but unfortunately I doubt that will happen."

Some type of compromise solution will have to be achieved after careful study of the proposal by all agencies concerned, he says.

"Confrontation doesn't seem to work in these situations, judging from past experiences, and I hope we can arrive at an amiable settlement," says Lapham.

He is satisfied with the amount of parkland the area has but would like to see limited development of some areas and a park acquisition fund accumulate.

FARTHING

Name: Edgar Farthing
Address: 975 Tuam Road
Age: 64
Occupation: retired Air Canada planning and economic director for purchasing and facilities

Edgar Farthing is running for a two-year aldermanic seat because of his desire to maintain the area as it is now and to keep taxes from growing beyond reach.

Before his employment with Air Canada he spent 20 years in the air force. He is a member of the Deep Cove Property Owners Association and the Help End Inflation Organization.

"I like the place as it is. It has a rural atmosphere that most people enjoy. I'm not in favour of a great deal of development," Farthing says.

"My pension is not indexed," says Farthing explaining that he would strive to hold municipal expenses back.

He is also running for the regional board seat because of frustrations he has experienced in trying to gain information from them.

"They are a big organization but I would commit myself to looking into their responsiveness to the people," he says.

In his recent campaigning, he says he has discovered that there are people who need water badly.

"My worry is that we'll be drowned in it at great expense," Farthing says.

He is seeking a one-year term on council.

The development of an on-going community plan is important to the community and something he is concerned about, says Lott.

Lott is concerned about marina development in the area. He says marinas stretch almost continuously from the Swartz Bay ferry terminal to the Sidney government dock.

"I'm concerned about marinas developing at the expense to our environment," he says.

He questions the need for more marinas and would like to see development at Bosun's Marina stopped although he doubts this can be done.

"I am, right now, trying to educate myself on the complicated water situation," he said.

Although he does not want to tie himself to a permanent point of view, he says he prefers the idea of using an already developed water facility such as the Greater Victoria Water Board rather than building a new one in the Capital Regional District.

On park lands, he says the municipality has enough rocky, treed land but he would like more waterfront park area. He also feels

NORTH SAANICH CANDIDATES

The proposal for Bosun's Marina, he says: "I don't think it should be developed at all."
He suggests the area be down-zoned to rural as a holding measure until the federal or provincial governments, or both, can be encouraged in assisting the municipality to purchase it.

The municipality has a recreation fund of about $45,000 that it could use for the purchase, he says.
He points out that the Capital Regional District has not agreed to an application to remove it from the agricultural land reserve which will hold up any development.
"There will have to be some marina expansion to serve the boating public," he says on marina growth in general.

Small lots for children scattered in the heavily populated areas of North Saanich are the type of parks that Sherwood would like to see gradually developed in the next few years.
Sherwood and his wife Anne have four children. He has run unsuccessfully for alderman once in North Saanich and once, for mayor, in Sidney. He also ran unsuccessfully as an NDP candidate in the 1972 provincial election. He is seeking a two-year term on North Saanich Council.

THOMPSON

Name: Robert Thompson
Address: 10896 Madrona Drive
Age: 61
Occupation: president of W. & J. Wilson Ltd.

Robert Thompson, an alderman with one year left in his term, is running for regional board director mainly because, he doesn't "think the mayor can do both jobs."

He's referring to the situation that would occur if George Westwood is elected mayor and regional board director.

Thompson was a trustee of the Deep Cove Water District, is chairman of council's water committee and is one of North Saanich's representatives on the water commission.

He was elected to council because of his interest in water, he says, and expects the water situation to be resolved by next year. He will probably not run for alderman again.

"Actually, Cumming would be the best man for the job, I'm running in case he doesn't make it," said Thompson.

Thompson and his wife Marlene have two grown children. He first ran for municipal office last year. He is a member of the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties.

BOWLES

Name: Eric Bowles
Address: 1986 Barrett Drive
Age: 58

Occupation: retired agriculturalist and horticulturalist

Eric Bowles is seeking a one-year seat on council after serving 18 years on a similar type of council at St.

Neots, near Cambridge, in Britain.

He decided to run after an unsuccessful try for alderman last year because, he says, of valuable experience he has and as an expression of appreciation for the welcome he received in Canada.

With two aldermen running for mayor, he says there will be a gap on council which needs to be filled.

Particularly, he says, he is interested in the financial side of council business and has experience with it from his previous council work.

Bowles says he is in general agreement with the community plan and admires its flexibility.

Marina expansion should continue and keep up with demand, he says, because the tourist industry is important to the economy.

"It should be of sufficient quantity and quality, but it must not be willy-nilly development," he says.

On parkland acquisition, Bowles says, the municipality must look ahead for 20, 30 or even 40 years to the need that will exist then.

He says he is running on a platform that emphasizes his considerable past experience, including three years in a position comparable to a mayor's.

He and his wife, Edna, have two grown children. Bowles does not belong to a political party "and I abhor party politics in local government," he says.

Direction Needed Says Thompson

Ald. Robert Thompson opposed a proposal submitted to the Saanich Peninsula Water Commission for the cost of water from the Greater Victoria Water Board and requested council give direction to its two commission members on North Saanich Council this week.

Thompson who is a commission member read from the letter which had not yet been discussed by the commission which changed the original conditions for the purchase of water, stated by the GVWD, to ones more in line with the commission's negotiating terms.

Some of these points were: an annual minimum use of 500,000 gallons, water costs of 18 cents per 1,000 gallons plus a buy-in factor of 12 cents per 1,000 gallons, no preference if a shortage of water occurred, and Saanich would be allowed to draw 1 million gallons per day from the line.

Thompson was unhappy with the requests and asked council to direct it's commission representatives to turn the matter over to the controller of water rights to solve.

Ald. George Westwood, the other council member on the commission, disagreed with Thompson's position.

He said the final authority was the cabinet not the water controller and that the water commission had met recently with the Minister of Municipal Affairs Hugh Curtis and he indicated his support for the water commission's position.

"I found the meeting enlightening and encouraging," said Westwood. "The minister said he considered it intolerable that a municipality adjacent to Victoria and water shortages."

Westwood said the minister supported the commission's negotiating position, the main point of which is that the peninsula not be charged a buy-in factor.

Council members agreed to consider the matter and make a decision on whether to give direction to their commission representatives at the next regular council meeting.

MONEY FOUND

A woman resident, who does not wish her name mentioned in order to avoid "crank" telephone calls, turned a sum of money over to Central Saanich police.

She told police she had found the money on Saturday on Mt. Newton X Road.

The loser of the money may recover it by phoning Central Saanich police at 652-2122.

over subsequent expenditures."

In a written statement, Cullis says: "I endorse the concept of returning to a basic curriculum which is career or vocation oriented. It is essential that all students be able to leave our school system with the basic skills and confidence required to pursue their deserved productive role in society."

"I support the continued community use of school facilities for such purposes as recreation and public education. Further to this, increased co-operation between school boards, recreation commissions, and the municipalities can only lead to more efficient use of all public facilities and help control capital costs by avoiding unnecessary duplications."

GALBRAITH

Name: Esther Ellen Galbraith
Address: 6485 West Saanich Road
Age: Declined
Occupation: Housewife

Esther Galbraith is well known to long-time Central Saanich residents as the widow of the former greatly respected mayor, the late Archie Galbraith.

She continues to live in the family home on the southern outskirts of Brentwood, taking care of her elderly father.

"Community work has been my pleasure during the many years I have resided in Central Saanich," Galbraith says in her election brochure. "I have worked with Guides, Cubs, 4-H and other organizations, and as a director on the board of the Silver Threads service."

Political affiliations, Galbraith says, have no place in municipal elections.

As to her reasons for seeking the office of school trustee, Galbraith "wishes to assure the electorate that she has the desire and the available time to give full attention to the many duties associated with this important position."

Regarding issues, Galbraith says: "I fully appreciate that there are peculiar difficulties facing trustees, administrative officers and teachers at a time when strict financial limitations have been set by the department of education. It will be my aim, if elected, to seek the best possible use of monies available, with the true interests of students always first and foremost."

Galbraith continues: "As a School Trustee, I have the necessary time to attend regular meetings and committees of the board, and to visit the schools in rotation, which I believe to be a vitally important part of a trustee's duties."

concern in the current campaign. Grant believes that former town councils have inadequately planned for Sidney's future and a closer look at what local residents want for Sidney within the next decade is badly needed.

The existing community plan, Grant says, is simply a zoning document which doesn't spell out long-term objectives for both residential areas or the downtown core.

The plan doesn't consider the town's unique waterfront setting, nor does it take into account beautification of the downtown area, he says.

The dwindling charm of downtown Sidney could be enhanced by providing seawall walkways, more parks, and a generally more attractive Beacon Avenue, says Grant, adding he fully supports the idea of a breakwater for the foot of Beacon.

"We have a marvelous environment," he says, "we're just not maximizing it."

Recreational activities in Sidney could be improved both at the Panorama Leisure Centre and in individual neighbourhoods, says Grant.

One asset would be a bar at the leisure centre where people could go for a quiet drink and enjoy comfort similar to that of their own homes. Grant says figures concerning the bars at recreation complexes in Oak Bay and Gold River indicate they definitely help reduce the operating deficit.

Sidney should also be seeking opinions from residents in all neighbourhoods to determine if more playing fields, tennis courts, or other low-cost forms of recreation should be provided, he says.

The existing council is somewhat "blah," he says, and has been efficient in day-to-day administration of the municipality but has shown little initiative.

Grant and his wife Jean have two daughters, Barbara, 10, and Stephanie, 8.

Grant is not affiliated with any political party.

PAQUETTE

Name: Denis Paquette
Address: Van Isle Marina
Age: 28
Occupation: Sidney Hotel manager

Denis Paquette hopes to represent Sidney's business community on the town council.

He has the support of the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce and has hopes of lowering Sidney's taxes through greater distribution of the tax burden.

The tax base could be broadened, Paquette says, by stimulating tourism and encouraging light commercial development, such as small non-polluting factories.

Sidney's not getting its fair share of tourism dollars, he says, and directional signs on the highway should encourage tourists to take sidetraps into Sidney. There should also be a central theme for Beacon Avenue to offer something a little extra to tourists.

Some of the industry located along the highway north of Sidney is an eyesore and a buffer zone of trees with limited landscaping would eliminate the problem, Paquette says.

Paquette has been a director of the chamber for the past three years and is currently a member of a chamber committee drafting a proposal to persuade the federal government to build a breakwater at the foot of Beacon Avenue.

He says "nobody's really got out there and pushed" for a breakwater and the new proposal will call for a breakwater somewhat smaller than others which have been proposed in the past.

Paquette believes that previous councils have deliberately stalled on getting water to the peninsula in the hopes of minimizing growth. Without growth, the tax burden will become increasingly heavier and it's pointless to try and stifle growth by refusing to provide necessary services.

The present council has a no-grant policy which "is alright" if there's no money to give, he says, but Paquette is angry at the council's blatant refusal to contribute toward the costs of a study on an alternate ferry service between Sidney and Anacortes.

He also believes spending by Sidney council should be more stringently scrutinized.

Paquette is single and is not a member of any political party.

PARK TO BE TURNED OVER TO NORTH SAANICH

The Nature Conservancy of Canada will hand over title to The R.O. Bull Memorial Park to North Saanich at a ceremony to be held at the park on Nov. 11 at 3 p.m.

The park, covering an area of 1.75 acres, contains some of the largest trees on the Saanich Peninsula, and is still in its natural state. It will be maintained in this condition by the municipality, for the benefit of the public. It is being established in memory of the late Colonel R.O. Bull, a former well-known resident of the district.

The purchase of the park was made possible by grants from The Nature Conservancy and The Victoria Foundation, and by donations from the family and friends of the late Colonel Bull, and by many donations from local residents and companies.

SIDNEY ANGLERS TO MEET

The Sidney Anglers' Association will hold its monthly general meeting on Monday, November 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the banquet room of the Sidney Hotel.

Aside from the general business of the Association Jack Green will give a complete talk and demonstration of canning with the club's newly purchased canner. Last month Jack gave a short introductory talk on the use of the canner; so for those club members who anticipate doing their own canning in the future

Monday's meeting should provide an excellent opportunity to find out all the do's and don'ts of canning fish.

In other club news Don Norbury won the largest fish of the month trophy for the second consecutive month. As well the club has scheduled it's first big winter fishing derby for Sunday, November 20. Along with a handsome first prize of $100.00, there will be additional cash prizes for the second and third largest fish, and hidden weight prizes.

Parish Assistant Sees Job as Educator

LAURIE SCHOLEFIELD is the lay ministry worker recently hired by the local Anglican parish.

The Anglican Parish of Sidney and North Saanich has a new addition to its church staff. Twenty-four-year-old Laurie Scholefield is the new parish assistant and Christian educator.

She is in charge of some areas of church education including working with youth groups, setting up a Sunday School for St. Andrew's, establishing study groups on various topics and running confirmation classes.

She explained she is a lay ministry worker and does many of the jobs Peter Parker handled before he was transferred. She is not training to become a priest and is not allowed to give the sacraments and perform certain other duties.

It is unusual for a woman to be hired to do this type of job, said Scholefield.

"The Anglican Church is quite conservative, the first job I had was with the United Church because I couldn't get one with the Anglican Church," she said. "This is changing slowly, though."

She sees her job as educator as an important one.

"The Christian faith isn't just a series of rituals. It's part of our lives," she said. "Caring for nature, even recycling our cans, practically everything we do becomes part of our faith."

"Education is a key part of faith if you want to change, develop and grow," said Scholefield.

She is the daughter of a long time Sidney optometrist and grew up on a holly and berry farm in Brentwood.

She took two years of classes in Christian education at an eastern college.

Going to a church camp was one of the first experiences she had with the Anglican church and it left an important impression on her.

"I liked that idea of society where we all worked and played together and what you were didn't matter. I just associated religion with camp life even though there wasn't much formal religion involved at camp," she said.

Talking about her generation, she said, "We've all gone gung-ho humanitarian but we ignore Christ."

She said humanitarianism and the Christian faith blend very well together. It is the blending of those two philosophies that she has tried to achieve in her life.

As an example one of the ways religion affects her life she cited the idea of keeping healthy and looking after her body because, as she said, "My body is really a gift from God and I have a responsibility to look after it."

Scholefield returned to the peninsula from a job in a northern community which she frequently found depressing and extremely discouraging.

"It was such a hopeless situation," she said. "The Indians lived on one side of the community and the whites on the other."

There was no industry in the community she said, "the people just went around in circles."

"I used to wonder if I was doing anything and then I would think, if I was just helping one person in some little way then I wasn't wasting my time," said the young woman.

This parish is a different experience for her.

"The people are warm and friendly," she said.

She has a one-year contract with the parish which might be continued.

One of the hardest parts of her job, she said, was knocking on doors just getting to know the people of the parish and discovering what needs they have that the church could help with.

She said she plans to return to school eventually to get her Masters degree in adult education with emphasis on counselling classes. She is not interested in becoming a priest.

"As soon as I put a collar around my neck I would likely relate differently to the congregation and in some ways loose touch," she said.

Farming Corporal

by JON BARWELL-CLARKE

Sidney's a nice place but Cpl. Mel McIntosh thinks his farming ambitions might be better satisfied in Courtenay. McIntosh, whose second love has always been farming, has requested a transfer to the Courtenay RCMP detachment.

The year-old corporal, second in command of the Sidney detachment, took two years of agriculture education at the University of Alberta before joining the force.

He has also been a member of the 4-H club since his youth. During his time with the Haney detachment he was leader of the Maple Ridge 4-H Club for four years and then president of the North Shore 4-H Club for one more.

Since moving to Sidney he has become involved with the Saanich Peninsula 4-H Beet Club and is proud of its reputation as the "biggest and the best".

McIntosh, his wife Linda and their two children live in North Saanich and although he likes Sidney he can feel the grass growing beneath his feet and is ready for another move.

Following eight months training in Regina, which included rigorous horsemanship drill, McIntosh was assigned to Campbell River. He remembers the time spent there as being a little more active than in Sidney.

After two years in Campbell River McIntosh was transferred to the Musical Ride and based in Ottawa after special training.

During his time with the ride he took part in international tours to the United States, Great Britain and Bermuda. In Bermuda, the RCMP airlifted horses for the first time. McIntosh considers the Musical Ride an important Canadian tradition which he hopes will be maintained.

It was during his time with the ride that McIntosh married his wife Linda and, as much as he enjoyed the travelling, it was too much of a bachelor's existence for a stable home life.

So in October, 1969, he was transferred to Haney where he spent five years.

Again getting the urge to try something else, McIntosh was transferred to Port Hardy for two years of plain clothes investigation.

He enjoyed working in plain clothes especially seeing a case through from start to finish. During his time in Port Hardy he was promoted to corporal then in June, 1976, returned to uniform and was transferred to Sidney.

McIntosh, his wife Linda and their two children live in North Saanich and although he likes Sidney he can feel the grass growing beneath his feet and is ready for another move.

BAPTISTS HOLD JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS

Bethel Baptist Church will celebrate this month its 25th anniversary of its affiliation with the Regular Baptist Convention.

The celebration, to be held on Nov. 12 and 13, is expected to be attended by all former pastors of the church. They include Rev. Don Merrett, Rev. H.B. Bye, R.W. Prepchuk, Rev. B.T. Harrison, Rev. J.T. Ballard, and the widows of Rev. T.L. Wescott and Rev. W.P. Morton.

The festivities will be held between 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday services, with music by David Alger, Art Wiebe, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Pierre, will be held at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The original building and property was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mason, founders and organizers of the Baptist work in Sidney. Under the direction of J.B. Rowell, it became affiliated with the Convention of Regular Baptists of B.C. in 1952.

Anyone interested is invited to attend the jubilee celebrations.

First Seat Belt Charge Laid

A minor two-car accident

RECOVERED

A '74 model car stolen from the K-Mart parking lot around 11 a.m. Thursday was found by Central Saanich police around 11 p.m. the same day abandoned on Verling Avenue.

Police say there was no damage to the car and that little gas had been used.

at the corner of Mills Road and West Saanich Road last week resulted in three people sustaining minor injuries and a charge of not wearing a seat belt.

The driver of one car was charged with failing to yield right-of-way when entering a highway and the passenger in the second car was charged with not wearing a seat belt, Sidney RCMP report.

FOX HUNTING is a great sport for a Saturday morning when the air is crisp and the horses fresh. This rider had her ups and downs last Saturday when The Fraser Valley Hunt Club journeyed to the peninsula for their annual hunt here. It is rumored the riders enjoy hip flasks of brandy on the long chilly ride. The "fox" chased by the 55 riders this year was actually a cloth bag scented with fox urine and dragged over the course shortly before the hounds came.

Motorists Urged to Buckle Up

The Director of Criminal Law advises that since Oct. 1, when British Columbia's new seat belt law became effective, B.C. drivers and their passengers have been afforded the opportunity of familiarizing themselves with the new legislation.

Peace Officers have been issuing warning notices to violators.

Now that every motorist has had ample opportunity to become acquainted with the new law those involved in law enforcement have been asked to ensure compliance in the interests of the safety of all who use our highways.

Except in those cases where a driver or passenger is exempted from the provisions of the seat belt law it is the duty of every person in the vehicle to use the belt assembly provided.

It is also the lawful responsibility of every B.C. driver to ensure that his vehicle is properly equipped with the correct number and style of seat belt assemblies, and to further ensure that any passenger from 6 to 15 years of age inclusive is correctly "buckled-up".

This is a booklet on Unemployment Insurance and how it now works for you.

Read, fold and save it for a rainy day.

"I hear there's been some changes in Unemployment Insurance. What's the story?"

New legislation has changed some of the ground rules of our UI program.

In general, the rules of eligibility and payment have been improved. Now they more accurately reflect the ease or difficulty of finding and keeping a job in the region in which each UI claimant lives.

Parliament has decided that people who live in areas of high unemployment will be given certain advantages over those who live where jobs are more plentiful.

"That's all well and good. But what does it mean to the person who just lost a job?"

On December 4, the entrance requirements will change.

In regions of low unemployment, claimants will need up to 14 weeks of insurable employment to get UI benefits. This will only happen in places where it's easier to get and keep a job.

In regions of high unemployment, claimants will need as little as 10 weeks to qualify.

But until December 4, the entrance requirement remains at eight weeks wherever you live.

"Does all this affect the waiting period?"

No. The basic two week waiting period remains the same everywhere.

And so do the rules about setting the waiting period when a claimant has left his or her job for no good reason or been fired for misconduct. In such cases, a claimant may have to wait up to eight weeks from when employment ends until benefits become payable.

"And how long can you get benefits for?"

The old maximum was 51 weeks. The new maximum is 50 weeks.

But since September 11, the total number of weeks for which a claimant qualifies also reflects the unemployment rate in his or her region.

Right now, we measure unemployment by dividing Canada into 16 economic regions. Later, in 1978, we will fine-tune the program to 54 regions so that UI will be even more closely related to local labour market conditions.

"Do you still get the same amount of money?"

Absolutely. The UI benefit rate is two-thirds of your average weekly insurable earnings.

The maximum is $147, less tax.

"Then there's maternity, sickness and age 65 benefits. Any changes there?"

Sickness benefits were only payable during the first 39 weeks of the claim. Now they are payable at any time during the entire benefit period.

Maternity benefits of 15 weeks and the special one-time benefit (equal to three weeks' benefits) at age 65 remain the same.

If you've worked in insurable employment, and a situation arises which entitles you to make a claim, that claim will be settled as quickly and courteously as possible.

"Well, what do you do about cheaters and abuse?"

There are fewer cheaters and abusers than some would have you believe.

Outright criminal fraud is dealt with through conventional channels.

Some people abuse the system without even knowing it. Here, and at times when the abuse is not really criminal in nature, we have our own staff to handle the problems.

In any case, the vast majority of UI claimants deal with us as fairly as we try to deal with them.

"How about when I make a claim and you say
"no"?"

If you have good reason to disagree with any decision a UI agent makes on your claim, you have the right to appeal that decision to an independent and impartial board of referees, or then to an Umpire of the Federal Court.

You can go to the appeal hearing and be represented by anyone you wish.

And if new information comes to light before or during the appeal, you can go back to your agent and ask for a review of the decision. And the whole appeal process is free.

Remember, our job is to pay you all the benefits you are entitled to.

"OK,
what do you have to do while you're receiving benefits?"

Your Unemployment Insurance
office can ask you to carry out what we call a formal "Active Job Search". Your agent will want to know what you're doing to find suitable and gainful employment while you're getting your cheques.

But no matter what happens, you should keep looking seriously for a new job and follow any instructions your UI office or Canada Manpower Centre gives you. Your right to continuing benefits depends on it.

If you'll do your job, we'll do ours.

"Some people say
Unemployment Insurance is too tough. Some say you're too soft.
What do you say?"

Our policy is to be neither "tough"
nor "soft".

On one hand, we have a responsibility to pay all those who are eligible the full amount to which they are entitled.
And to do so quickly and courteously.

On the other hand, we have an equally important responsibility to the public to make sure the UI program is not abused. Those who defraud the program are stealing money right out of your pockets.

It's a policy of balance. As you know, you can't please all the people all the time.

"Policies are fine
and dandy.
But what about when you get into a real UI office?"

People in UI offices are selected and trained to deal pleasantly, fairly and efficiently with the public.

They're not there to handle claims or inquiries according to whim. They follow the rules laid down by Parliament.

Each case is considered individually on the facts. The UI agent's job is to make sure that each claimant gets all the benefits to which he or she is entitled.

In spite of this, they can make a mistake. It could be a straight error, or caused by insufficient information. But most of the time, everything works fine.

"Let's talk efficiency.
How does your operation compare to,
say a regular insurance company?"

Some people think we're too easy and permissive about paying claims. Others think we're harsh, unfeeling bureaucrats.

At any given moment, UI has over 10 million 'policy holders'. By any criteria we'll gladly compare our administrative efficiency with any insurance operation in Canada.

So, people have mixed views about us. The only way we can really win is to go on running the program fairly, humanely and carefully.

"How, then, would you describe the UI program?"

It's just what it says: an insurance program. It provides temporary financial support when you're out of work. It's not a way of life. While you're on UI, you must be actively looking for a job.

That's your job. Our job is to pay UI benefits to all those entitled to get them, as quickly, courteously and efficiently as we know how.

It's all a matter of co-operation.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission and the Department of Manpower and Immigration have become the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission. For a time, you'll still see our local offices identified as Unemployment Insurance offices or Canada Manpower Centres. When they're together in one location, they'll be called Canada Employment Centres.
